The suspect was seen sprinting away from the scene, leaving the elderly woman unconscious on the sidewalk and bleeding from her head. Witnesses came to the victim's aid, and she was ultimately transported to the Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital (ZSFGH). Medical staff later advised police the victim suffered a concussion, several cracked ribs, and significant bruising from the incident.

Witnesses provided police with a suspect description, including the suspect wearing distinct athletic attire. Police were also able to obtain video evidence depicting the suspect intentionally running towards the victim and knocking her to the ground.

Members from SFPD's Central Station Investigations Team sent out a crime bulletin to department members including videos and photos of the suspect.
